the handler receives the packets generated by the rex of a processor requesting input output services and provides the logical to physical interface functions needed to implement the request.